When the bill to make him rear admiral, which was finally passed, came up in the house, Mr. Bailey, of Texas, said he fully approved of this bill, but he gave warning that this spirit of patriotism now sweeping over the country should not be used for the purpose of creating any large number of new and high salaried officers. The bill was passed without dissent, but Bailey's remarks seemed to have acted as a wet blanket upon the enthusiasm which marked the consideration of the resolution of thanks.

"Send us food and clothes," he said, "and when you are ready I am; Spain won't last long in Cuba then." He is advised that many English artists and correspondents to Cuba have arrived here today. ### Something Wrong Here?

Saturday forenoon a Mexican girl named Rosa Dias committed suicide by taking carbolic acid. She died about 7 o'clock the same evening, and was buried yesterday afternoon by Undertaker Ross. The dead woman was the divorced wife of Oliver, the porter at the Vendome hotel. No cause has as yet been assigned for her act.

Undertaker Ross says he was called on by the mother of the girl to bury her, and he at once inquired who was the doctor in the case. On learning that Doctor Huffaker was the physician he went to him and procured a certificate, and from that got a permit for burial. However, it is understood that in cases where one has met death by violence it is necessary for a coroner to give a certificate before the body can be moved. If there was nothing mysterious in the case why should everything have been kept so quiet? However an inquest will be held, and if necessary the body will be exhumed.

An Amendment Moved.

From the New York Mail and Express.

The Imparcial, of Madrid, says concerning the Cuban situation: "The moment has arrived for providing the endurance and courage of our soldiers, who desire to march to glory." The sentence, it will be observed, should read, "who desire to go to glory." This is the only criticism we have to offer, as the reference to time is absolutely correct.
